Fitzhugh Resigns From State Demo Committee

Governor Bailey May Not Attend Committee Meet

Close Advisors of Governor Report That He Will Stay Away

NOMINATION TALKED

Primary vs. Nomination to Senate Vacancy Before Group

BULLETIN
LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The Democratic State Committee nominated Governor Carl E. Bailey Friday afternoon for the United States Senate vacancy created by the death of Senator Joseph T. Robinson.

There was no roll call. The vote came within two minutes after the committee voted to accept a sub-committee recommendation that it nominate.

No other names were placed before the committee for nomination.

No comment was immediately forthcoming from Governor Bailey.

BULLETIN

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Chairman Thomas Fitzhugh resigned from the Democratic State Committee Friday afternoon as it met to decide the procedure for selecting a nominee to succeed the late Senator Joseph T. Robinson.

Fitzhugh is chairman of the State Utilities Commission.

He said his resignation was caused by an Act of 1935 setting up the Utilities Commission which provided that none of the commissioners shall engage in a campaign for another office.

June P. Wooten of Little Rock, was named chairman of the committee on the nomination of Revenue Commissioner D. L. Ford of Fort Smith.

Bailey Not to Attend

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Closest advisors of Governor Carl E. Bailey said early Friday afternoon that he would not attend the Democratic State Committee meeting scheduled for Friday afternoon.

The same leaders, who declined to permit the use of their names, disclosed that if the committee first votes against holding a primary, the name of Governor Bailey will be placed before the committee for nomination as United States senator by Nathaniel Dyke, Jr., Fort Smith industrialist.

Dyke will cast his vote by proxy given him by Lamar Sneed, Camden committee member.

Committee to Meet

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—The epic battle of words over the method of selecting a Democratic nominee to succeed U. S. Senator Joseph T. Robinson neared a conclusion Thursday.

The Democratic state committee will decide Friday whether it shall nominate a candidate or call a primary at which any Democrat desiring could run. Proponents of a primary charged the committee planned to hand the nomination to Governor Carl E. Bailey.

A subcommittee which will make a recommendation to the parent organization Friday studied correspondence on the question for six hours Thursday and adjourned without making a statement.

An authoritative source disclosed the five subcommittee members had agreed and no minority report would be submitted.

Commenting on reports Thursday night the session would be closed, Committee Chairman Thomas Fitzhugh said:

"I know of no precedent that would cause the meeting to be executive."

Governor Bailey, under fire from some quarters and demanded as the party nominee by many others communicating with the committee, continued to hold his silence. Friends said he would not attend the session.

His only public pronouncement has been that his course would be decided after the committee acts and that "my friends may expect the best

Before Lehman Hit Court Bill

"My good right arm" is the phrase President Roosevelt used in reference to Governor Herbert H. Lehman of New York. Friends of the administration insist the "good right arm" now has stabbed the Supreme Court bill in the back with the letter urging Senator Robert Wagner to vote against the controversial measure. And many wonder whether a scene such as this would be possible again, with the President (right), Lehman and Wagner (left) happily fighting shoulder to shoulder for the New Deal in a campaign meeting in New York City.

A dinner guest stays on and on, past your usual bedtime—

Mattern plans to fly from Glendale, Calif., to Moscow along the "north pole" route by which three Russian aviators recently came to this country.

Killed

Fred Tindol, fleeing Texas convict, who was killed with his own gun by J. E. Denton, Oklahoma farmer, when Tindol and his companion Pete Traxler, fell asleep. Traxler was also shot and seriously wounded.

Traxler May Get Electric Chair

Prosecutors to Ask Death Penalty for Armed Robbery

HUGO, Okla.—(AP)—Texas patrolmen gave up their vigil Friday at the bedside of Pete Traxler, wounded southwestern desperado, as it became apparent that the outlaw would be brought to trial in Oklahoma on charges of robbery with firearms, which carries the death penalty.

To Seek Death Penalty

HUGO, Okla.—(AP)—Two courageous hostages who halted the wild flight of Roy (Pete) Traxler with his own firearms have joined prosecutors in efforts to send the escaped Texas desperado to the electric chair.

County attorneys of both Madril and Bryan counties, both of which charged Traxler with armed robbery, a capital offense, said the hostages agreed to help prosecute the outlaw they wound after slaying his fugitive companion, Fred Tindol.

"We will ask the death penalty for Traxler, regardless of which county he is tried in first," said Sam Colby, Madril prosecutor. "We have agreed to try him in the first of the two counties to have a term of district court."

"Sure I'll testify against him," said James E. Denton, oil field worker who with Frank Trimmer, a farmer, was forced to accompany Traxler and Tindol in the fugitives' flight from a posse.

Trimmer also agreed to help prosecutors.

Saying he was "almost certain" Traxler, now in custody of the Choctaw county sheriff, would be released to the two counties for trial, Colby added "we have him here in Oklahoma and I don't see why he should be turned over to Texas."

Traxler was serving a 99-year sentence for armed robbery when he escaped with eight other convicts from Eastham, Texas, prison farm July 8.

Previously Gov. James V. Allred of Texas had announced he would seek extradition of the wounded outlaw. Traxler had said he would "rather die" than be returned to Texas.

China and Japan Solving Row by Peaceful Means

Withdrawal of Chinese Troops Near Peiping Is Completed

VITAL PEACE MOVE

This Constitutes Compliance With Japanese Demand

PEIPING, China.—(AP)—Japanese army officers announced Friday the withdrawal of the Chinese Thirty-Seventh division southward from the Peiping area had been completed.

This constituted the Chinese compliance with a Japanese demand which is seen as the most vital to immediate restoration of peace in North China.

Final units of the division, which belongs to the Twenty-Ninth army under the command of General Snag Sheh Yuan, left the Peiping area at 4 a. m. central standard time Friday, Japanese officials reported.

Remove Source of Friction
Officials said this would remove the most dangerous source of friction between the two powers. They expressed belief it would dispel much of the tension which has gripped the Orient since the night of July 7, when small Japanese and Chinese units clashed near Marco Polo bridge, ten miles west of Peiping.

The Japanese War Office issued orders which indicated a halt in preparations for large-scale war.

Chinese and Japanese troops alike were reported evacuating the immediate zone of conflict west of Peiping.

Domei said the Nanking Government had notified Gen. Sung Chieh-Yuan, chairman of the Hoeph-Chahar Political Council and commander of the Twenty-Ninth Army, it would accept his settlement with Japanese military leaders in North China.

Against Local Solution
Hitherto Nanking has stood against any such local solution, insisting the issues were national and must be settled between the Tokyo and Nanking governments. The Japanese have insisted the autonomous Chinese authority in the north had power to make settlements with them.

The head of the Chinese Government, Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, was described as having presided over a stormy session of Nanking leaders on Thursday morning and to have thrown his power in favor of a wait-and-see policy which his colleagues finally adopted.

Most of Nation Again Swelters

More of It Forecast, the Weather Man Says Won't Last Long

CHICAGO, Ill.—(AP)—Temperatures climbed over much of the Nation Thursday as a new heat wave moved in.

J. R. Lloyd, forecaster at the Chicago station of the Weather Bureau, reported temperatures generally were above normal and would go higher. He softened the forecast, however, with the explanation there were indications that it would not last long.

He said it would be really hot Friday in the Central Plains region—Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota and Southern Minnesota—and the Lower Missouri and Upper Mississippi Valleys. It will be hot also, he said, on the Southern Plains.

Thermometer readings of 100 and more were expected in some places, he said, with temperatures in the nineties not uncommon.

Many Western spots sweltered on Wednesday. Ten points reported readings of 100 degrees or more. Yuma, Ariz., reported 108, the highest.

Madrid Is Shelled, 15 Reported Dead

After Two Weeks of Peace Capital Is Jolted Again

MADRID.—(AP)—Twice shelled within the past 24 hours and with at least 15 killed and a score injured by insurgent big guns, Madrid was thrown back Friday to grimness of a bitter siege.

After two weeks of comparative calm while a tornado of offensive and counter offensive raged over hills and plains some 15 miles to the west, Madrid was jolted into a sharp realization that the besieging army was still at her gates.

Bulletins

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A high administration official represented President Roosevelt Friday as believing that further legislation than that offered by opponents of his original court bill would be necessary to accomplish his broad court reorganization objectives.

Notwithstanding action of the senate in killing the administration's court program, the administration spokesman said that the president felt that some progress had been made toward those objectives.

The president declined to comment publicly on the court contest.

Senate Overrides Low Interest Veto

15 Republicans and 53 Democrats in Line-Up Opposing F. D. R.

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Senate overrode President Roosevelt's veto of continued low interest rates on farm loans by a vote of 71 to 19 Thursday.

This action made law of the low interest extension, the house having voted previously to override the veto. It was the second time this session that both branches of congress voted to override a veto. On June 1, over presidential objections, they passed a bill extending the temporary Government insurance policies of World War veterans for another five years.

Isiah Holmes, negro, was convicted by jury on grand larceny charges and was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

Leo Anderson withdrew a plea of not guilty and then entered a plea of guilty to burglary and grand larceny and was sentenced to three years in the negro boys industrial school.

Curly Moore, one-armed negro, pleaded guilty to burglary and grand larceny and was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary.

Britt Given Judgment
A consent judgment of $1,300 was given Aaron Britt in a civil suit brought against the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York over an insurance policy.

A civil suit brought by G. D. Cliff against Union Saw Mill company was being heard Friday afternoon. Court is expected to adjudge late Friday afternoon until the October term of court.

The injunction against Dickey's Coney Island for operation of a dance place and the carrying on of business in an unlawful manner was made permanent, prohibiting past operators from again operating the place.

However, the provision against P. J. Drake, the owner of the building, and not the actual operator, was dissolved. This allows him to reopen the building to carry on a business in a lawful manner where it would not disturb residents of the vicinity in which it is located.

In the event of future disturbances and general breaches of the peace, the place can again be padlocked. Prosecuting Attorney Ned Stewart told The Star.

The injunction, which closed the place on June 15 of this year on reports of frequent disturbances, was settled without introduction of testimony from any of several witnesses subpoenaed to court.

Earth Tremors Are Felt in Fairbanks

Men and Women Run From Homes as Buildings Sway

FAIRBANKS, Alaska.—(AP)—Half-dressed men and women ran from homes and hotels, frame buildings swayed and merchandise tumbled to floors as a strong earthquake struck Fairbanks and the Alaskan interior Thursday.

The quake began about 7:09 a. m., Fairbanks time and lasted more than a minute. Tremors were re-current throughout the day.

A second severe shock came at 7:55 a. m. The third, at 8:01, was so severe it put University of Alaska seismograph out of commission.

Oversea Flag-Waving Is Not in Our Line

THE mouthpiece of a nation in any foreign land is its envoy to that land. And when that envoy makes a slip of the tongue, then his nation is usually held responsible for the utterance and may have to suffer all the added constructions that prejudice, favorable or unfavorable, may allow.

Sometimes these slips are harmless enough to be good for a laugh all around—and possibly a red face for the envoy. The case of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman was one such example. Five minutes after she took the oath of office as minister to Norway this spring, Mrs. Harriman inopportunely revealed that the United States and Norway were well along in negotiations for a reciprocal trade treaty.

Later, when the new minister arrived in Norway, she was unusually aloof in the presence of newspapermen, one of whom reported that "Mrs. Harriman seems to be strictly instructed not to give positive statements."

X X X

ALL very well, if it amounts to no more than that. But in London, a Fourth of July address by Ambassador Robert W. Bingham threatened to have more serious consequences.

He was quoted as saying that "despots have forced America and Britain to undertake rearmament, and having undertaken it, we must necessarily win the rearmament race." Also: "If dictatorships are better to prepare for war, democracies are better to finish war." Of these statements, the U. S. State Department said it had no knowledge.

The immediate response was a flareup in a prominent German newspaper, which called the remarks "agitative" criticism of "other European people." Regardless of how much the truth may have hurt the editor of that German paper, there is little doubt that he was correct in adjudging the ambassador's remarks as at least unnecessary.

X X X

FOR one thing, waving the nationalistic flag outside the privacy of the family circle just is not in the accepted American tradition. Even the bombastic stump speaker, who used to spellbind Independence Day picnickers at county seats the country over, was not so hard put for a topic that he had to delve into foreign relations.

Then, too, dealing with Norway obviously is quite different from dealing with any of the dictatorships. In these days of touchy feelings among the nations—and especially among two or three particular nations—the United States has a splendid opportunity to strengthen its reputation for cool-headedness. When these little "slips" occur, they make it all the harder for the nation to dodge the diplomatic squeezes which are bound to come in the future as general tension increases.

But most useless of all is any attempt by the United States to growl and show its teeth. Europe has war dogs who do it so much, much better.

"Secret" of Traffic Safety

BELEAGUED traffic experts and some individual motorists sometimes must wonder at the slow progress they are making in teaching the nation to drive safely. Then, occasionally, even when prospects look worst, along comes a city like Beaumont, Texas, to show how traffic safety actually is being accomplished.

For the first six months of 1937, as compared with the same period in 1936, Beaumont shows an accident reduction of 18.1 per cent; fewer injuries by 28.7 per cent, and a death rate by 75 per cent. Factors back of these tremendous accomplishments included tighter enforcement of ordinances, a "no exception" rule in trial court, widespread interest of citizens, and "S" men to observe and report, but not arrest violators.

This formula seems simple enough, and might well serve as a model for any other city trying to promote safe and sane driving. There is no secret maze leading to the traffic safety goal. It is within reach of every community and every drive, and Beaumont has shown that it can be won.

Faith in "Pill" Remedies May Allow Kidney Diseases to Become Serious

(No. 273)

A recent circular from a patent medicine house advertised 50 different kidney pills, 31 kidney remedies, 127 kidney pills and various kidney tonics, bitters, cordials, capsules, drops, medicines and treatments and herb teas.

Usually, the thought of kidney trouble brings a picture of a man leaning over with the hand in the middle of his back where the kidneys are often thought to be placed. Usually the average person guesses all wrong when he puts his hand over the region where he thinks his kidneys are.

A pain in the back is much more likely to be associated with the posture of the individual than to mean something wrong with his kidneys.

Furthermore, quacks usually claim their treatments will cure both diabetes and inflammation of the kidneys. Most kidney pills include some laxative or harmless herb. The whole purpose in these pills is to cause, if possible, an increased flow of fluid from the kidneys.

Such pills are worth less than nothing in treating diseases of the kidney. In fact, they are dangerous, because the person who attempts to cure himself with such pills loses valuable time in getting scientific medical attention, including an accurate diagnosis of what is wrong.

An increased flow of fluid from the kidneys does not necessarily mean an increased elimination of waste material. In fact, the kidney pill may contain an irritating substance which, although it increases the elimination of fluid, may actually cause great damage to the kidney tissue.

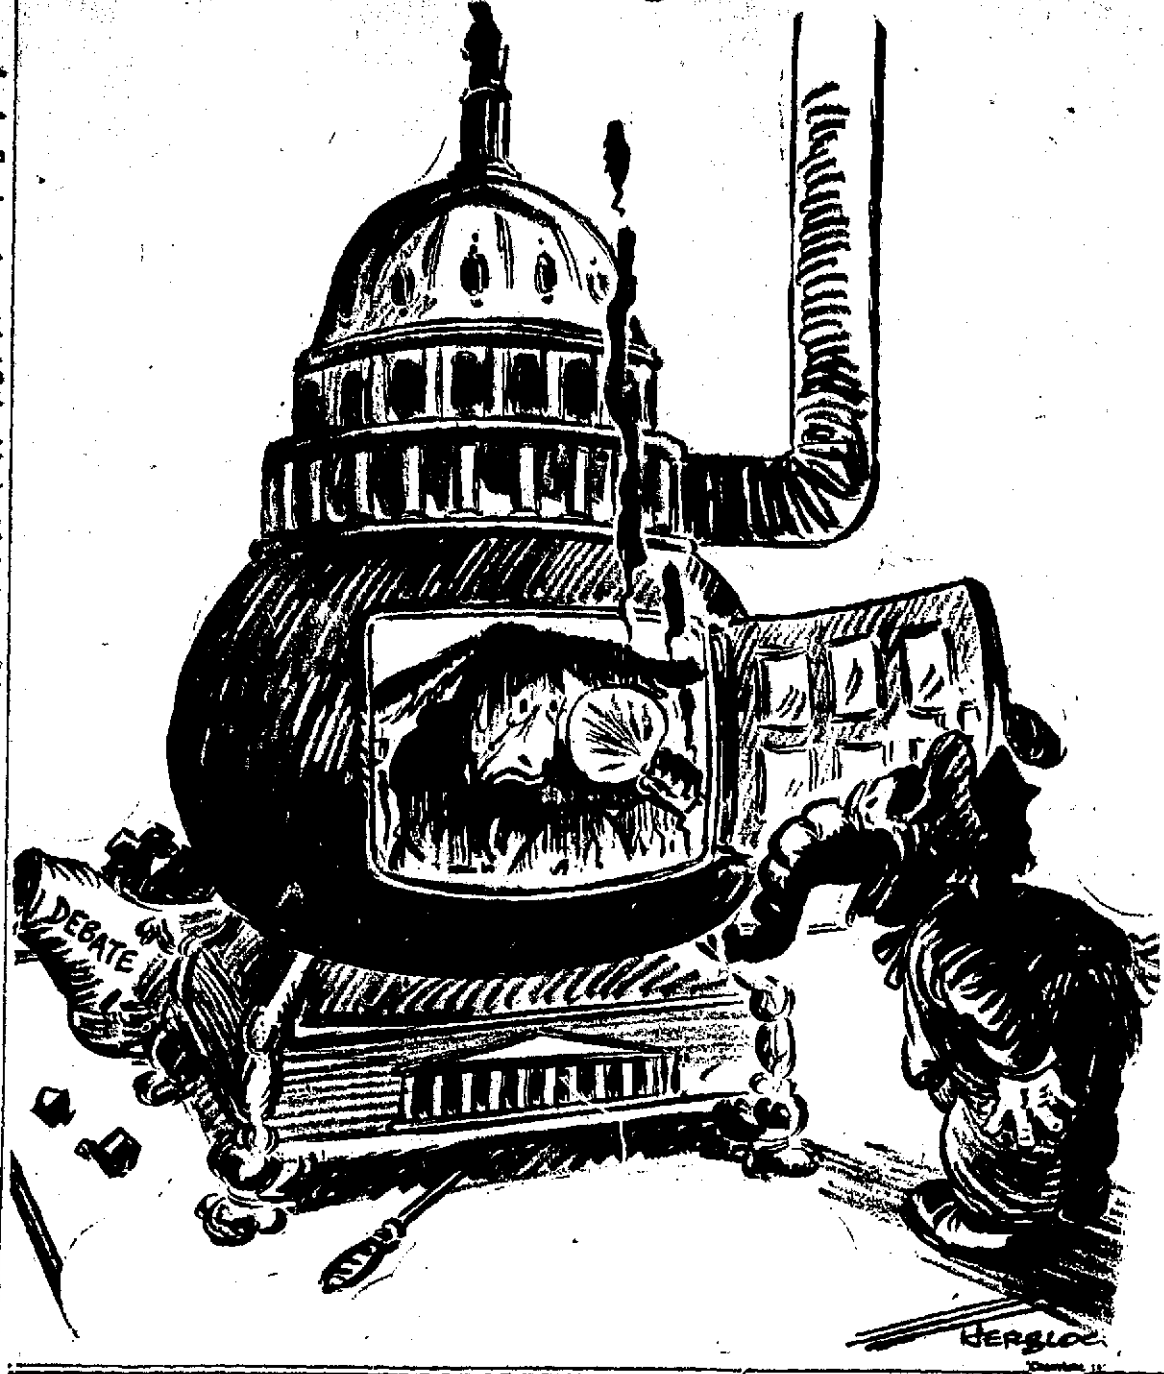

Every inflammation of the kidney is a potential hazard to life. As has already been pointed out in the discussion of uremia, suppression of the elimination of waste materials from the body may result in death in short order.

Drowsiness, convulsions, itching of the skin, headache, cramps or twitching of the muscles may be the first symptoms and should always be taken as a warning sign of the necessity for careful study of the patient.

It is much better to provide a sample of the urine for examination by the doctor than to take some kidney pills with the hope that the symptoms will disappear.

In severe cases only a few days may

"Dog Days" Gave Pets Bad Name

Dog Days worry so many parents that it is only kind to do a little explaining.

The way of the days of July got their reputation in olden times was not on account of dogs, but from the Dog Star, the largest in the constellation known as Canis Major, or Greater Dog.

Many constellations are named after animals. We have the Lion (Leo) and the two Bears, Ursus Major and Ursus Minor. Then there is the Goat, the Fish, the Crab, and so on. I am, an astronomer but I have always been interested in the charm of the stars, and their various stories.

Now Sirius, the Dog Star, pokes its head over the night horizon in our north temperature zone, each year early in July. This year the almanac says the 3rd. And as July was always a month of heat and low water, when both people and animals got sick, it was natural that illness and disaster became associated with the Dog Star, and the July days were known as "Dog Days," or "Canicular Days."

Dogs Wrongly Blamed

The poor doggies have paid a price through all the centuries, as being extra dangerous at this time. What a pity. They are in the same fix as ourselves because they get sick from many of the same causes.

Just as we take extra precautions about our children's health in hot weather we should pay more attention to our pets. They suffer from heat and get sick on contaminated food, dirty water and turned milk.

Rabies is the dread word, yet there is comparatively little hydrophobia among dogs. Frothing at the mouth goes with worms, approaching distemper, or, as with one dog we had an infection following an operation.

There are two kinds of fits, the frothing kind and "running fits," the latter usually caused by overexcitement and excitement. Frothing fits are caused by illness.

Rabies is another matter. All dogs with rabies do not froth at the mouth. Usually they are strangely quiet, may roll their eyes and lool their tongues.

An owner will recognize that something is radically wrong and take precautions. There is no cure, but bitten dog, as to a bitten child, to obviate danger.

Give Lots of Water

Long haired dogs suffer from heat and get sick. Give them cool places to sleep and live. What all dogs clean food, and plenty of fresh water. Change water often and wash out all dishes each day.

So-called dog poisoning is less common than thought. Rotten meat and offal kills dogs, and the one left to scavenge for his food will probably die sooner or later from poison.

Nurse your pet if he is sick. Get a veterinarian to identify his malady. If the least suspicious, confine him carefully until you hear the verdict.

"Dog days" merely means hot days. Heat is hard on dogs, cats and canaries. Help them and don't over worry. All bites or scratches should have quick attention, just in case. "Worm" dogs, even big ones, every so often. Many a fine animal has been shot for rabies, when a good dose of germitage was all he needed. They get the eggs from the ground, from other infected dogs.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

On the "Under Side" in American Society

That murky, dog-eat-dog half-world which John McIntyre portrayed so effectively in "Steps Going Down" comes under the microscope once more in a new novel by the same author—"Ferment" (Farrar & Rinehart, $2.50).

The scene of the story is Philadelphia; under-the-surface Philadelphia, so to speak, in a queer realm of labor spies, chiselers, fixers, union leaders and garment workers. The narrative has to do with two brothers, one an honest, hard-working taxi-driver, the other a mean, wise-guy cheater and bluffer. The brothers love the same girl, and the novel tells how the second brother loses her to the first.

But the book is a great deal more than a mere recital of a love affair. It is a picture, as its title suggests, of a world in ferment—a strange, murky world where honest men are confused and misguided, where the schemers and the tricksters are always one jump ahead of the pack, and where the seamy underside of great events is unmistakably displayed.

So we see the beginnings of an authentic, 100 per cent American Fascist movement here, with professional strike-breaking agencies and labor spies stumbling over each other trying to get in on the ground floor. We find honest union men forecasting what is coming and trying blindly to head it off. And we are shown the ordinary telling masses, ignorant and confused, knowing nothing of it, seeking only to extract a little happiness from a setup which seems to be stacked against them.

All in all, "Ferment" is a fine book, a bitter, sardonic book, occasionally lighted by human tenderness and honesty, and presenting a dismaying but recognizable picture of the under side of American society.

Extravagant guesses often are made as to how far a man drives a golf ball, and like fish yards, they frequently are amplified, dependent on the narrator.

The fantastic tales about Laverne Moore, alias John Montague, were striking examples, although they should have been thrown out in the first place, if for no other reason than that they came from Hollywood.

Some tremendous distances were recorded shortly after the old gutta-percha pellet was discarded.

R. C. Bliss is reported to have blasted a shot 445 yards from a tee elevation of 50 feet at Herne Bay, England, in August 1913.

Going farther back, the immortal James Braid cracked a 395-yarder at Walton Heath.

H. W. Horn is credited with a 388-yard effort in 1909.

The great English tournament star, George Duncan, had a measured drive of 382 yards in 1911.

Swinging to modern golf, Sam Snead won the United States Professional Golfers' Association long driving championship at the Pittsburgh Fair Club this spring with a best ball 324 yards.

Bib and blond Craig Wood hit a shot in the British Open of 1933 which came to rest 430 yards away.

That Wood's phenomenal poke was stand a lot of beating in any company was demonstrated in a contest billed as being for the North American title and held the other day in conjunction with the General Brock Open at Niagara Falls, Ontario.

Longest Drive Finally Wins Contest

The result was that from now on should require plenty of sales talk for any golfer to convince listeners that he swatted a ball more than 300 yards, let alone poled a 300-yarder.

For the Niagara Falls competition was staged in an ideal setting and under perfect conditions, and was won by Jimmy Thomson, generally considered the hardest hitter extant, with a colossal tee shot which measured 386 yards.

Thomson's aggregate for 10 drives was 3407 yards. His average of 340.7 yards was made all the more amazing by the fact that he suffered 10-yard penalties on three shots that soared out of bounds. One of these was a tremendous hit easily comparable to his 386-yard peak poke.

Strangely enough, for all his power-house prowess, it was the first long distance driving contest ever won by Thomson.

"And that 386-yard drive easily was 30 yards longer than any other ball ever hit," beams the well-set-up money player of Shawnee-on-Deleware.

The Niagara Falls contest went on a long way toward demonstrating what constitutes a long drive and what merely is a piker effort in the highly specialized business of clouting a golf ball.

It would be difficult to locate a better site for a long driving contest than the first tee at the Lookout Point Golf course, a few miles from Niagara Falls. The hole measures 420 yards and the commanding elevation of the tee, 146 feet above the green, assured additional distance. The fairway was marked with chalklines, similar to a rugby field. Markers down the course conveyed the length of each drive through a public address system to the scorer and gallery.

Stare Did All That Was Expected.

Arthur Keeling, home professional, anticipated a 350-yard drive by Thomson or some other Babe Ruth of the woods. With a good stiff breeze back of him a club amateur this season drove a ball in the neighborhood of 400 yards to the edge of the green.

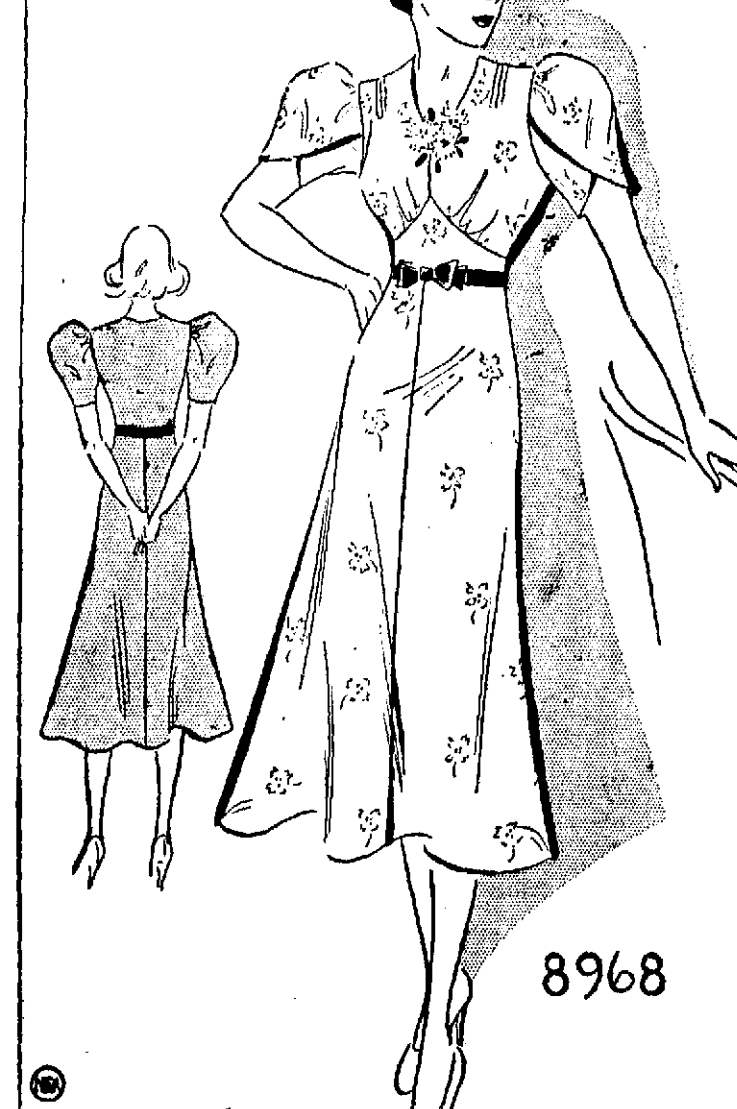

All of the leading American professionals, exclusive of Yankee members of the Ryder Cup team, participated in the Niagara Falls contest. The competition called for 10 smacks, the high aggregate to decide the winner, a qualifying competition, with three drives, being held in the morning to put the strongest 20 in the main event.

Stocky Ed Oliver of Wilmington looked like chief claimant when one of his morning efforts carried to the 372-yard mark, for Thomson was far below that in the qualifying round.

Thomson's shots had to boom past the 350-yard mark, for Oliver and Johnny Bulla of Chicago were ahead of him with totals that indicated trouble. With Bill Mehlhorn fiddled around the 350-yard stripe and dropped one ball into the 15-foot "O" at that distance to win a case of beer, Harry Cooper was not once out of bounds in the 10-drive competition and three-drive qualifier.

Henceforth, the man who hit a ball 250 yards or thereabouts should feel like nothing else but a very ordinary citizen.

Only Heaven Is Given Away

They bought a gay-roofed little house upon a sunny hill. Where heaven is very close to earth and all the world is still. It took their savings, every cent, although the cost was small. But, oh, the lovely things they bought, and paid for not at all! The sleepy valleys that below in tawny sunshine lie, The oaks that squawled across their slopes and climb to meet the sky. Stray winds that sing of other things than those our eyes may see, Blue wisps of mist, and raveled clouds that, fleeing, beckon me. White suns of mad, glad April, October's wine to quaff, On crystal winter mornings my hearth fire's crackling laugh. The silent stars that march at night so close above their heads, The sound of rain drops on the roof when they are snug in bed. For joist and beam and shingles gay they spent their savings small, But on the lovely things God gave He put no price at all.

Hollywood Beauties Preen Themselves for Their Playtime For Sport or Spectators, They're Exquisite

This is how Cecilia Parker basks in the sun. Blue pique shorts are topped with a print blouse matching the lining of her coat, and hat and bag. The coat is saddle-stitched with yellow yarn.

Of course, it's all the same in Hollywood, but elsewhere, where the summer is just one of four seasons, it's interesting to learn that Virginia Bruce sets off her lovely blond hair with a sand-colored suede jacket for sport. Wonderfully soft it is and snugly, and its tie-belt gives just the right swaggerish air. Virginia's vest and beret are cherry red, thus offering a dashing gay contrast. Both are in suede.

Weekly Sunday School Lesson

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

God Prepares a People
Text: Exodus 12:21-28
Our lesson tells of the institution of the passover, that solemn celebration which has been through the ages the most distinctive rite of the Jews. It is associated with the idea of deliverance, and that idea has continued deep in the faith and vision of a people that in successive eras in history have been in bondage and oppression. In the lesson as it stands, are facts and suggested teachings that are on a lesser plane than the teachings concerning the mercy and grace of God in the New Testament. Here is an avenging God whose wrath is manifest upon an oppressive people, who smites the Egyptians, but who spares the oppressed Jews in the dwellings where blood of the sacrificial lamb has been spread upon the lintel of the door. It is the passing over of the homes thus identified that gives its name to the passover. One cannot but reflect upon the fact that the Egyptians who thus perished may have been free from guilt; but in history the innocent have suffered with the guilty. It is not easy to teach such a lesson in the light of the gospel of love and forgiveness of one's enemies, and what the New Testament calls "the glorious gospel of the grace of God." We should stress in our study and teaching the idea of deliverance rather than the thought of vengeance. The comment of a distinguished Jewish writer may be helpful. Dr. Mordecai M. Kaplan, in his book, "Judaism as a Civilization," says, "The story of the redemption from Egypt, which is the traditional basis of the Pesach (passover) festival, should be made the occasion for stressing the implications of the conception of God as redeemer. That festival should direct our attention to the need of utilizing the redemptive energies which exist in nature and in man, the energies to which we look to break the shackles of the human spirit. It offers an excellent opportunity for becoming conscious of the true significance and the proper uses of freedom." The literature of oppression and deliverance in the history of every people has the discordant elements of heroic action and endurance, passionate loyalty to an ideal or cause, and great deliverance, combined with elements of cruel suffering and retribution. When oppression arises, it is unfortunate that someone must suffer in the process of deliverance, but it is inevitable. The life of a people becomes subject to the consequences of the wrongful and oppressive acts of its leaders. We cannot, however, be true to the spirit of the Bible and to the Christ to whom the Bible bears witness if we do not in our reading of all the records of history, both sacred and profane, remember that the supreme teaching of Jesus was that men should love their enemies and do good to them that do spitefully use them and persecute them. It was in this way, he said, that we might be the children of the one great Father of Love, whose justice is manifested not only in His mercy, but in the inexorable law that bring to every act of good or evil its necessary consequence. The male and female peacemakers take turns sitting on the eggs, and each sits for days at a stretch, without relief.

Will Mary Qui Marrying? 'No'

Smiling, gay, undaunted Mary McCormack adjusted the collar of her dress, tossed a blond head until big, circular earrings whirled, and cried: "Through with marriage? I should say not. But I won't name the next one yet." The 37-year-old opera singer had just divorced her fourth, Homer V. Johannsen, when this picture was snapped in Chicago.

WITH THE LADIES

When I was a little girl, how different it was! I wasn't allowed to stare over my shoulder at anyone, even a man with a very red nose or a boy who could wiggle his ears. I couldn't ask questions—not dozens of them, one right after another, I mean—though there were all sorts of things that I wanted to know. Little girls always wore hats, in the sun, grownups said, so their faces wouldn't get freckled. And little girls didn't climb trees, play leap frog or marbles! But I'll bet if England's Princess Elizabeth wanted to take away a page's mibbs she'd go back to the nursery with the pockets of her sweater spilling treasures. The candid camera, that has been chasing King George's elder daughter, has revealed that she turns her head to stare, she points—right in front of people, too—and she will not wear a hat. When I was a little girl any child who acted that way had to go without a new hair-ribbon or stay home from a birthday party. We were told that we must pattern after the princesses. Since we had none in America, we

Night Services on Lawn to Continue

Methodist Church Lawn Used for Services During Summer

In keeping with the custom for the past three summers, the evening service at First Methodist church, held on the church lawn, will continue for this year was held last Sunday night with a splendid attendance.

The arrangement this year is different from the previous years. The piano in the beginners department is being used for the service, resulting in better singing. The overhead lighting system for the congregation is the same plan as formerly used. Chairs from the Men's mess rooms are being used for the service.

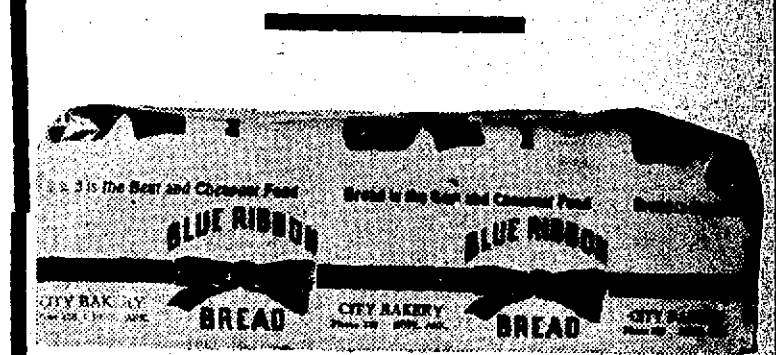

You are invited to spend a half hour on the church lawn in a heart warming service of worship.

Sunday night Edward Lester, E. P. Young, Jr., and Robert Jewell will report on the Boy Scout Jamboree. Charles Segnar will play a trombone solo.

Trout live in swiftly moving streams because of the great amount of oxygen dissolved in such waters.

Travelers to Open Series With Chicks

Byron Humphreys Will Start Friday Against Memphis

LITTLE ROCK.—Leading the Southern Association by five games, Dr. Prothro's Trucking Travelers will oppose the second-place Memphis Chicks in the first of a four game series at Travelers Field at 8:15 Friday night. League-wide interest is manifested in the "crucial" set as it is generally acknowledged to be the "making" or the "breaking" of the Southworth squadron in the current race.

"Screwballing Byron" Humphreys, taken off the relief rolls because of his great hurling of late, is Manager Prothro's choice against the desperate invaders. It was Humphreys who defeated the Chicks last Saturday and the same Humphreys, who went in as a relief pitcher Sunday to again beat the Tribe in 13 innings.

With Lindsey Deal out indefinitely, indications are that Sammy Libert, a right-hand hitter, will play right field. If Manager Billy Southworth starts a right-hander, Jack O'Neill will be out there.

Loss of Deal forced Manager Prothro to alter his starting line-up. Whoever plays right field will be the lead-off man. Art Graham, regular lead-off man, will be dropped to fourth place. Leo Nonnenkamp will but second. Jim Tabor, third, Al Niemec, fifth and Mule Shirley, the catcher. Bunny Griffiths and the pitcher in the order mentioned.

Blames Auto Age for Scarcity of Rookies

MICHITA, Kas.—(AP)—Pat Crawford, the South Carolinian whose baseball playing career was cut short, by an infection after a minor operation on his hip, sees a dearth of first-class major league recruits, and has figured out a reason.

Crawford, a member of the 1934 world champion St. Louis Cardinals, attended a baseball school here recently—not as a pupil. The school enrollment was 181, but of this number only six were considered promising enough to warrant trials with Class C or D clubs.

The cause of this lack of ability is no longer a mystery to Crawford. "See that thing crawling along there," he said, pointing to a sleek automobile. "That's one reason."

"The boys have a better chance now than they ever had. When I was a kid my mother gave me a ball with a peach-stone center."

"Now, with all the fine athletic equipment in the schools, the kids have a great chance."

"But they play a game of ball in the afternoon and get in their cars at night, with dates, and forget all about baseball. They don't seem to have the ambition for the game."

The United States held a perpetual lease on the lot, which is under water half the time.

Major League Club Owners Are of All Sorts—McKeever Is the Oldest

Diamond Magnates Most Criticized of All Business Men as Everybody Thinks He Knows the Game Better.

This is the second of six illustrated articles on "The Other Side of Baseball."

By RICHARD MCCANN
NEA Service Sports Writer

The most criticized business man in the world is the owner of a major league baseball team.

He doesn't know how to handle employees, he doesn't pay them enough, he doesn't buy enough players, he charges too much for admission, he ought to get a new manager, and anybody would've known better than to make the trade he made last winter.

Those are some of the mutterings you hear before, during, and after each game. It's the fan's privilege to think out loud that he can do a better job at running the ball club.

"Yes, and the day that they stop thinking that," Clark Griffith once said after his appearance on the field had brought on a 17-minute boo from the citizens, "we might just as well close up shop."

When you know him, you will find that the major league club owner is a genial gentleman, a shrewd business man, a good sport, and a generous boss.

Once upon a time nearly all club owners were men who had worked up from the ranks and depended solely on their baseball holdings for a living. Nowadays, however, sports-minded heroworshiping multi-millionaire seeking some hobby to lessen their boredom, are buying up franchises and the Old Guard is dying out.

Connie Mack, patriarchal president-manager of the Athletics, who was a catcher before the Spanish-American War; Clark Griffith, half-owner of Washington who led the American League in pitching in 1901; Bob Quinn, Boston Bees' president, who played in seven minor leagues, and Branch Rickey, head of the Cardinals' furling farm system, who caught for the Yankees and Browns, are the only up-from-the-ranks bosses left.

McKeever Oldest Club Head

The oldest club head is 83-year-old Judge Stephen McKeever, Brooklyn Dodgers' president. The Judge, a contractor and former politician who helped build the Brooklyn bridge, got tangled up with the Dodgers when he loaned the late Charles H. Ebbets $750,000 to erect a ball park and received half the club stock in return.

Youngest of the owners are Horace C. Stoneham of the Giants and Tom Yawkey of the Red Sox. Both are 34. Both have realized childhood dreams by directing major league teams.

Young Stoneham likes to recall that in writing a grammar school essay entitled "What Would You Do If You Had a Million Dollars?" he said: "I would buy the Giants." A few years later his father, the late Charles A. Stoneham, wealthy Wall Street operator, paid precisely that sum for the club. Personable, enthusiastic Horace fell heir to his heroes when his father died nearly two years ago.

Yawkey, who inherited two mining and lumber fortunes is taking up where his foster-father, William Yawkey, left off. The elder Yawkey owned half of the Tigers two decades ago. "I want to own a baseball team like him when I grow up," young Thomas often said.

The husky, youthful, democratic Red Sox owner, restricted to a $1 weekly allowance as a boy despite the wealth around him, has spent gobs of money trying to buy a pennant at Boston.

Yawkey is one of the few who is truly an owner. The term owner is generally a misnomer because only Yawkey, Walter O. Briggs of the Tigers, Jacob Rupert of the Yankees, Lou Comisky of the White Sox own their clubs lock, stock, and barrel. The other so-called owners are heads of syndicates or large stockholders.

Have Varied Interests

But whether he owns the entire club or merely a block of stock, the club head cherishes victory about as much as money. Rupert abhors defeat. "Ooooh," he'll shudder at a close game, "I can't stand it." And he'll get up and leave. His idea of a good game is Yankees 20, Opponents 0.

Stoneham watches all games from the center field clubhouse. He has four chairs lined up at the windows—a single, two-bagger, three-bagger, and home run chair. He sits in the single chair when he wants a single, and so forth.

Comiskey, son of the Old Roman, Charles Comiskey, frequently travels with his club in hopes it will help. Clark Griffith thinks his cheering helps Washington on the road. He's quite a heckler away from home.

They have varied interests. Powell Crosby, Jr., of the Reds, is a radio magnate and amateur aviator. Rupert owns a huge brewery and collects jades and porcelains and monkeys. Gerald P. Nugent of the Phillies was a hook and eye company official and a twice-decorated World War hero before taking up baseball. Philip K. Wrigley of the Cubs is president and director of a half dozen corporations. William Benswanger of the Pirates loves music. Walter Briggs heads the auto-building company which bears his name (Joe Louis was a laborer in the plant at one time). Alva Bradley of the Indians is an industrialist, real estate operator, and banker.

Sam Breadon of the Cardinals greases autos for a living once. And Donald L. Barnes of the Browns built up

Dave Ford to List Gambling Devices

All Machines Classed as Games of Chance Will Be Included

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(AP)—Revenue Commissioner Dave Ford announced Thursday he would issue to all Arkansas law enforcement agencies soon a list of mechanical devices which under a recent supreme court ruling might be classed as gambling paraphernalia.

He made the announcement at a meeting called by Governor Bailey in response to inquiries from several counties as to what constitutes a "slot machine." Sheriff's, prosecuting attorneys from many counties, state police, representatives from the attorney general's and the governor's offices and revenue department attended.

Earlier, Bailey announced at a meeting attended by state police heads of penal institutions, representatives of the department of public welfare and county officers that he had completed personnel of honorary county boards to act in an advisory capacity to the state penal board. He said he would make public soon the names of those selected.

Representatives of the attorney general's office said that under the recent supreme court ruling practically all devices operated by coins and involving an element of chance come under the head of a "gambling device."

Ford said that all devices included in the lists he will prepare will not be licensed in Arkansas in the future.

The earlier meeting was attended by approximately 150 persons gathered for a discussion of the state's new parole and clemency legislation enacted by the recent legislature.

Superintendent Al H. Reed of the state penitentiary told the assembly suspended sentences frequently are more effective than paroles.

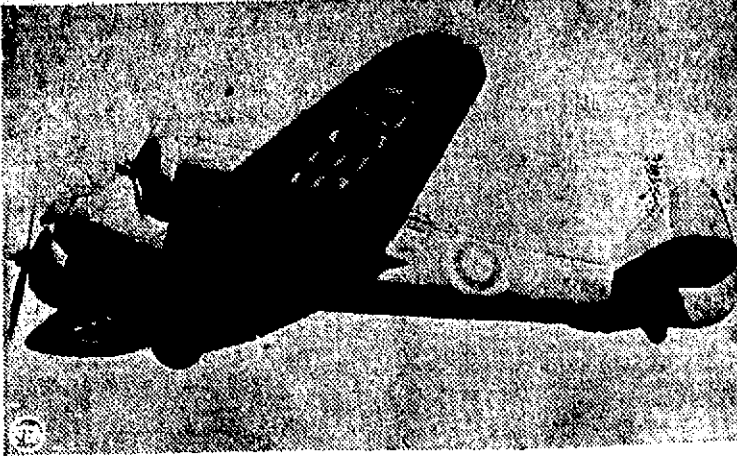

Other speakers were State Parole Officer Charles Grier, Commissioner of Public Welfare Gussie Haynie, J. C. Dawson, superintendent of the boys industrial school, Pine Bluff, Superintendent Gray Albright of the state police.

The county honorary boards to be announced soon by Bailey would assist in the rehabilitation and readjustment of released prisoners.

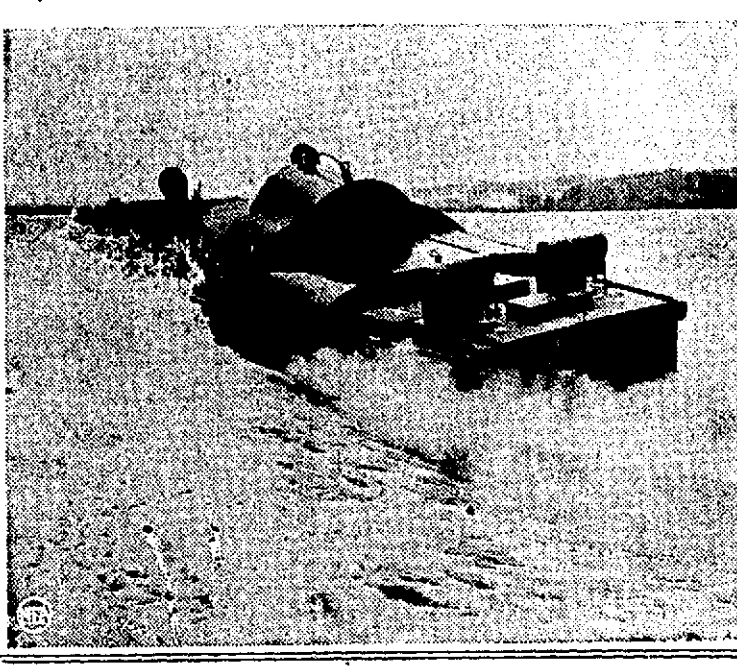

The governor expressed the possibility the next step toward solution of the clemency problem would be through a constitutional amendment.

"Many problems have arisen which could not have been foreseen when the constitution of 1874 was written," he said.

The speedy homproof target boat (below) is indicative of the intensity of British preparations for any war eventuality. Controlled by radio, the vessel darts along coastal waters to test the skill of the Royal Air Force pilots who soar overhead in the Bristol Blenheim bombers (top), called the fastest medium bombers in the world. By perfecting the bombers' marksmanship, Britain's military chiefs hope to be ready to meet any challenge from the sea.

'Feuds' in Film Colony Often Prove to Be Gags

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—Ginger Rogers on Hollywood feuds: "Everybody in Hollywood plays so many jokes and gags, that's how half these feud rumors get started. People on the outside, coming in late or leaving early when a gag is under way, can misconstrue a whole incident. It's like catching a movie scene out of sequence... and reading meanings into it when you haven't read the script."

Ginger and K. Hepburn, performing as co-stars in "Stage Door," still-knocking on wood—haven't had trouble. The dope is, however, that Ginger is wrapping up the picture to take home with her... almost as fast as they rewrite the stage play for the sound stages, from day to day.

Maybe Hepburn will gratify the trouble-seekers by waking up to the fact and starting something, but I doubt if she cares or would show it if she did.

Diver in Search for Big Monster

Believes Big Monster Is Luring in River Near Newport

NEWPORT, Ark.—Deep Sea Diver Charles Brown of Memphis, attempting to establish the identity of the "monster" of White river, under the sponsorship of the Newport Chamber of Commerce, established two facts concerning the creature after three hours under 50 feet of water Thursday.

"There is no old overturned boat and there are no crevices along the bottom through which air or gas might be escaping," Brown said while removing his hot, perspiration-soaked diving suit. "It's hot down there and the water is mighty black and dirty. I am more than ever convinced that there must be a big fish down there."

The diving exhibition started from a large barge in the center of Bateman cddy, six miles south of Newport. It was the result of demands received by Marion Dickens, president of the Chamber of Commerce, that something be done to determine the identity of the large creature reported cruising about the waters molesting the choice White river catfish, destroying the high-priced mussels and other resources from which Newport receives large sums.

Diver Brown came here announcing that he had spent 12 years studying his vocation, and that he would attempt everything that any diver could do to solve the mystery that has gained front page notoriety in most of the metropolitan newspapers, over the radio and through the conversant tourists who pass over the transcontinental highways of this section.

Talk of an independent candidate entering the race should the nomination be made by committee persisted, with Osro Cobb, republican leader, saying in a statement that "I would urge aggressive republican support for an independent democrat or the nomination of a republican."

The special primary committee organized early this week said there was no significance to the fact that no one appeared before the subcommittee to present his views.

"It was not the intention of this committee to make any protest to the subcommittee as they are not going to and cannot make any nomination or call a primary until the full committee meets," they said in a statement.

Members of the "we want a primary" committee, declaring they expected hundreds from all sections of the state to endorse the stand Friday, asserted privately they expected a committee nomination.

A floor fight, however, was certain. Robert Prather, member from Vimy Ridge, declared for a primary Wednesday. He said he could not believe "ugly rumors to have the committee nominate him." Other members have been noncommittal.

Nine of the 35 members are state employees, having been appointed since Governor Bailey took office.

Raw Food Advocate, at 72, Fathers His Eleventh Child

There are 13 mouths to be fed fruits, vegetables and nuts in the husky Hollywood family of Dr. St. Louis (I'm Strong As Steel) Estes, left, back-to-nature advocate and lecturer, since his 37-year-old wife, centered among her brood above, gave birth to her eleventh child, a nine-pound girl, and two hours later resumed her household duties. Never do the Estes cat fish, fowl or meats of animals with blood streams. The loin-clothed children are tutored at home, seldom leave the estate with its playground and swimming pool. The five boys are named St. Louis Estes II to VI. The new baby, shown in its mother's arms, has not been named, but Mrs. Estes says no matter, neither have two previous girls. They respond to Chickadee and Dimple, so why bother?

Dr. Fishbein, Sailing, Hails Start of U. S. War on Syphilis

By MORRIS GILBERT
NEA Service Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK—America has overcome "the Great Taboo"—the conspiracy of silence regarding the terrible social scourge, syphilis—and now can be expected to forge ahead rapidly toward control of the disease. So declared Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, and regular contributor to health problems to NEA Service and Hope Star, in an interview as he sailed aboard the Normandie to represent the American Medical Association at the annual meeting of the British Medical Association in Belfast.

"So, although America's record in control of social disease is at present the worst of any civilized country in the world," Dr. Fishbein said, "there's no reason why we can't do as well in regard to it as in any other field of medicine."

"The contribution to civilization of American medicine has always been in organization. Our success in combating yellow fever, diphtheria, pellagra, malaria, has been outstanding, recognized throughout the world as an American triumph. Similar organization, since the subject is no longer taboo, can now be expected with regard to syphilis," he said.

"The mid-Victorian atmosphere of hypocritical concealment about syphilis is breaking down. At last newspapers have the courage to come out and discuss its evils and dangers and cure with the same freedom they display in regard to any other infectious but controllable disease. Syphilis can be stamped out by public service and education just as yellow fever or smallpox were doomed."

Dr. Fishbein pointed out that his new book, just off the presses, is the first published for general reading on the subject whose title does not equivocate. It is called "Syphilis." Written for the layman, it avoids complicated technical terms, doesn't deal with the distant history of the dread ill, and treats the subject calmly and factually from the point of view of the definite questions the average reader wants answered.

"The title of the book itself," Dr. Fishbein observed, "is an indication of its lack of stilted inhibitions. I wrote it to educate the public in the vital matters of prevention and treatment of the disease."

An estimated ten to twelve million Americans, suffer from syphilis, Dr. Fishbein asserted. In the case of between 4 and 5 millions, the disease is communicable. The "incidence" of the disease, in the United States, he said, is the worst in any modern, civilized land.

U. S. Record Bad

"Contrast these appalling figures with the position of Sweden, where national control is more enlightened and competent than anywhere else in the world," Dr. Fishbein said. "In Sweden there are 6000 new cases of syphilis a year, on the average. If the United States were on a par with this figure, taking into account comparative populations, new cases each year would number not more than 60,000. Instead, we have the deplorable record of an average of 650,000 a year—more than ten times Sweden's."

Dr. Fishbein will visit the Swedish national health department in Stockholm, as a guest of its director, a personal friend. He will also inspect similar headquarters in Copenhagen, Denmark, and Amsterdam, Holland, two countries where records in prevention and treatment of social disease on a national scale are also excellent.

"My new book, Dr. Fishbein explained, "grew out of the series of six articles on the subject which I wrote for NEA Service a few months ago. One section is devoted to educating the public in simple prevention of the disease. Since the means of transmission is so generally embarrassing, it advocates a simple and honest frankness in discussion."

National Program Needed

"But that brings up another section of the book, in which European methods are advocated, since all the other civilized countries handle this problem so much better than we do. Main methods which the United States must follow, in order to clear its record of this shame, include the establishment of clinics for free treatment of the patient; supply of free drugs (at present, a considerable expense); and compulsory notification of the disease and of contacts. An important field for organization is the care of mothers of unborn children, for although syphilis can be transmitted pre-natally, it need not be, if the disease is noted in time."

Dr. Fishbein paid high tribute to Surgeon General Thomas Parran of the U. S. Public Health Service who has taken a leading part in fighting the disease in this country.
